Deposit protection legislation explained

It is normal practice for a landlord or letting agent to take a deposit from their tenant to safeguard against potential breaches of the tenancy agreement (for things like failure to pay rent or damage to the property).

The tenancy deposit protection legislation was introduced under the Housing Act 2004 in April 2007 and is designed to protect the tenant's deposit and ensure they get it back at the end of their stay, provided they meet the terms of their tenancy agreement.

When you take a deposit from your tenant on an Assured Shorthold Tenancy (AST) in England and Wales you will need to do the following within 30 calendar days of receiving the deposit:

- ✓ Protect the deposit with a government authorised scheme, such as mydeposits,
- ✓ Provide the tenant(s) with the Prescribed Information.

Fail to comply with both or either of the steps above and you could be fined between one and three times the deposit amount, and lose the ability to obtain a court order to regain possession of the property (under a Section 21 notice) until the deposit is protected and Prescribed Information served.

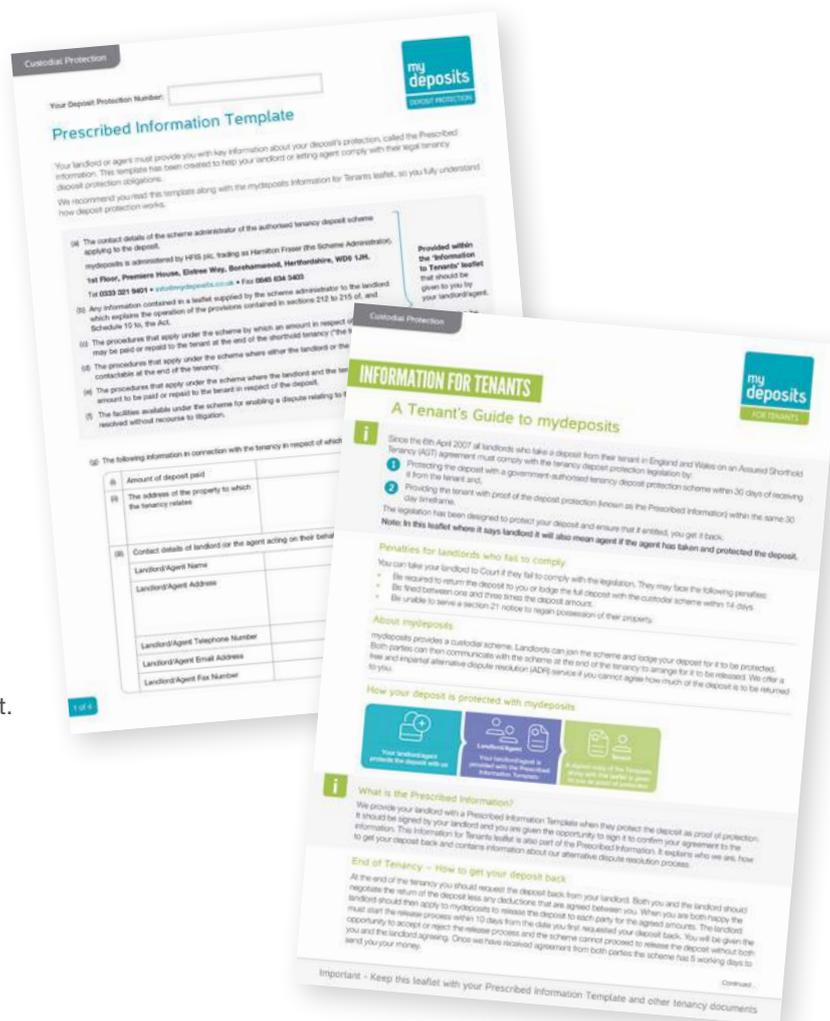

mydeposits is here to ensure you comply with the law quickly and easily.

What is the Prescribed Information?

As well as protecting the deposit you must also provide the tenant with key information relating to the deposit protection, called the Prescribed Information. This includes details about the scheme used to protect the deposit, instructions about disputes and key contact information.

mydeposits provides its members with the majority of this information in the Prescribed Information Template which is produced when you protect a new deposit, along with the mydeposits Information for Tenants leaflet.

All you need to do is complete and sign the Template and pass it to your tenant with the leaflet within 30 days of receiving the deposit.

How mydeposits Custodial works

Protecting the deposit when you receive the deposit

Protecting your tenant's deposit is a simple process. The quickest way is in your online member account.

① Join mydeposits

mydeposits is a membership scheme.

To get started you'll need to set up your member account.

✓ This is a one-time only process and can be completed instantly online.

② Protect each deposit you take

Login and use your member account to protect each new deposit you take from your tenant.

Simply enter key details about the property and tenancy in your member account.

✓ You can transfer the deposit to us by bank transfer, cheque or debit card and the deposit is protected once the funds clear.

③ Inform your tenant

Pass the tenant proof of the protection (called the Prescribed Information).

We provide the majority of this information in the Prescribed Information Template that is produced when you protect a new deposit, along with the mydeposits Information for Tenants leaflet.

⚠ Protect the deposit and serve the Prescribed Information within 30 days of taking the deposit to comply.

④ That's it, you're done!

You can do all of this instantly in your member account.

✓ The deposit is protected for the full length of the tenancy agreement.

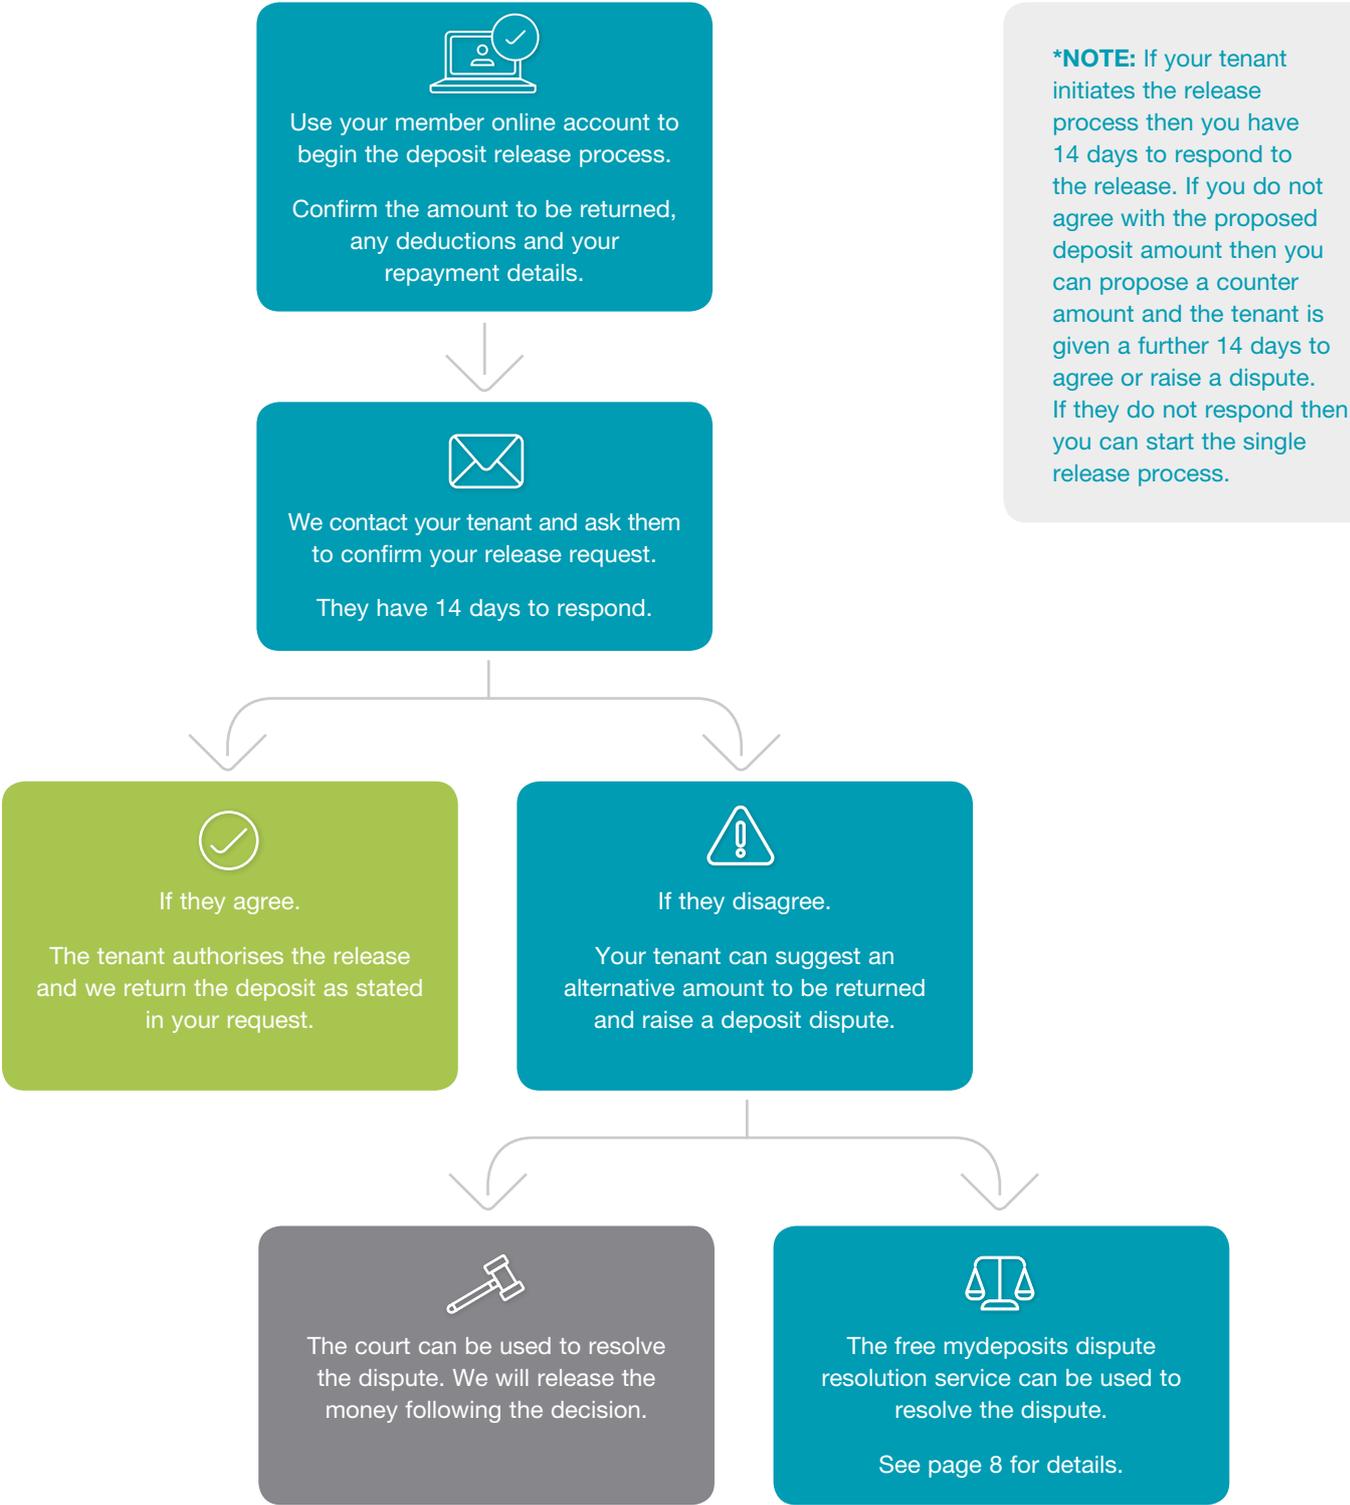

How mydeposits Custodial works

The end of the tenancy mydeposits is designed to allow quick and easy release of the deposit money at the end of the tenancy.

The following diagram shows how the member begins the deposit release process.*

The single release process

mydeposits provides a single release process that allows either a tenant or you, the member, to claim the deposit money back from mydeposits when the other party doesn't reply to our release request messages.

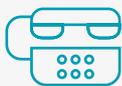

How to action the single release request:

- 1 You must have been through the standard release process on page 6.
- 2 If the other party does not respond to your release request within 14 days then you can complete the Statutory Declaration template and then swear before a solicitor, commissioner for oaths or a magistrate.
- 3 Once mydeposits has received the completed template we will send the other party the Statutory Declaration and if there is no response within 10 days. We will release the money in accordance with the Statutory Declaration.
- 4 If the other party contacts us to dispute the Statutory Declaration then the mydeposits alternative dispute resolution process will begin.

Top tips for a fast repayment of the deposit

Meet your tenant before they leave the property and discuss the return of the deposit. Make sure you explain any deductions that you want to make and give them the chance to negotiate. It will save time if you agree on any deductions before you involve mydeposits.

We need to contact the tenant and receive their authorisation to return the deposit. Make sure we have all their correct contact details including their email and phone number when you protect the deposit.

Check that your bank details and address details are correct so the deposit can be returned.

About Alternative Dispute Resolution

1 Dispute initiation

If your tenant doesn't agree with your proposed deductions then we offer a free dispute resolution service to resolve the issue. The disputed deposit amount will be the difference between the release requests.

Any undisputed money will be returned.

2 Submit your claim and evidence

You will be asked to submit a case and provide evidence to support your claim to the deposit deductions.

This should include a tenancy agreement, check in/out reports, photographs and any documents relevant to the dispute that support your claim.

✓ You have 14 days to provide evidence.

3 Tenant response

Your tenant will be given the opportunity to review the dispute case and counter your claim.

They will be invited to submit their own evidence in support.

✓ Your tenant has 14 days to act.

4 Review the case

You will be given another opportunity to view your dispute case and submit further comment for the adjudicator to review.

✓ You have 7 days to provide comments.

5 Adjudication decision

The case is reviewed by an independent adjudicator. You and your tenant will be notified with a full decision. The money will then be distributed as per the decision.

✓ It can take 28 days to make the decision.

Dispute tips with Suzy Hershman

Head of Dispute Resolution, Suzy Hershman offers guidance on disputes and how to avoid them.

“Preparing for a deposit dispute starts before the tenant moves in, not when the tenant moves out.”

At the beginning of the tenancy

✓ Have a high quality written Tenancy Agreement

This is the legal contract with your tenant so ensure it's clear, concise and fair. Badly worded tenancy agreements are a leading cause of landlords and agents losing disputes.

✓ Take a written inventory and check-in report

This provides a full record of the fixtures, fittings and décor, and records the standard of the property before the tenant moves in. Make sure it's signed and dated by both parties.

- Be descriptive and use consistent terms
- The written description is key. Use photos and/or video to support the inventory
- Detail age of items.

During the tenancy

✓ Keep receipts and any invoices for charges incurred during the tenancy

- Proof of purchase
- Document cleaning, repair and replacement costs
- Keep bank statements as evidence of costs.

✓ Rent payment log book

- Keep an accurate record of paid and unpaid rent.

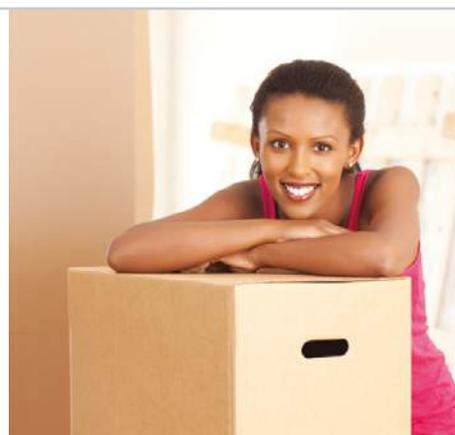

✓ Correspondence and witness statements

- Keep copies of letters and emails between both parties.

At the end of the tenancy

✓ Complete a check-out report

- The check-out compares the overall state of the property at the end of the tenancy with the inventory and check-in report from the start of the tenancy
- Use the same terms and descriptions
- Use photos and videos
- Ask the tenant to attend the check-out.
